Description

This series consists of the office files of deans of Continuing Education, including Brenton Stevenson, Clyde Balch, Thomas Clapp and Donald McHugh. Major topics documented include; UT facilities use, the university's advertising and promotion committee, the Ohio Board of Regents, the Seagate Center, computer training programs at area companies, the Grosser Scholarship, and Title 1 of the 1965 Higher Education Act supporting continuing education as a way to solve community problems. Also included are early bulletins of the evening session program, personal letters from students to instructors, records of industry, community and interuniversity course collaborations, and much more.

In 1995, continuing education became a part of University College.
