Students Combine Efforts To Remove Dirt Of 5 Years From Union Room

By Dolores Mack

With backs of the "Oh my," were the order of the day Saturday when the civic-minded students of the University under the capable supervision of Mary Catherine Kirk, in business administration, went all out, even out the windows, to give the Student Union a thorough cleaning. Rubbing the sleep out of their eyes and arrayed in jeans, tattered shirts, sneakers and conglomerations of attire, Kirk, Patricia Poll, Katherine Klewer, Robert Lew and Lou Lou Rush surveyed the scene and groaned.

This laxity, however, lasted a short time until Miss Kirk began shouting orders which rang across the campus sounding like "Come on take those drapes down. Get those screens off the windows. Bring on the water ammonia. Who wants to clean windows? Help me move furniture."

A period of mad scrambling followed and from the chaos came a semblance of order. Found Phyllis Catlan, Patricia Poll, Charles Watson and Helen Klewer washing windows, Patty Hammontree and Dolores Mack, scrubbing five years of accumulated dirt off the apartment bath.

Miss Kirk and Barbara Witt shining radiators, and Peggy Donnell and Miss Klewer polishing ash trays. While this was going on the request for additional students to be represented in student-faculty committees has been discussed with President Philip C. Nash, by Robert Wale, president of Council and Patty Hammontree, secretary. Wale announced this week. Dr. Nash discussed the proposal with faculty members at the next faculty meeting, he said.

light bulbs and lamp stands were being cleaned by Virginia Buetner and the pictures and other wall decorations were coming in for their share of the attention from Sally Breck.

The furniture was next in line taking an able washing and polishing by Virginia Townsend and Marny Lou Worden. Floors were scrubbed and polished by Robert Lew and James Townsend.

The outer window panes presented a difficult problem to Miss Catlan who immediately drafted Watson for the job. Doing a human fly act and hanging on with his fingernails, Watson washed the outside of the windows without a scratch.

When lunch time rolled around the crew adjourned to the drugstore where Wayland C.

Council Plans Campus Night

Superstitious Friday is the theme of tonight's Campus Night, Frances Gluck, chairman, said this week. Student Council is sponsoring the dance, which will be from 6:30 to 10:30 in the Student Union. Miss Gluck will be assisted by other members of Council.

Guests will be participants in the Pi Kappa Delta Debate Tournament to which the University is host this weekend.

The constitutions of Phi Alpha Theta, national history honorary fraternity, and the University chapter of the United States Student Assembly were approved at a special meeting of Council held Monday.

Dean Reported Ill

Miss Katherine Easley, dean of women, has been ill for a week. Mrs. Jesse Dowd Stafford has been taking Miss Easley's English classes during her absence.

Byers, purchasing agent for the University, kindly decided the efforts put forth were worth the price of all the lunches.

The nice gesture instilled a renewed vigor in the beat-up bodies and they went back to their jobs with smiles on their smudged faces and songs on their lips.

The library was next on the list and this fell to the lot of Miss Catlan and Miss Klewer, washing windows and Katherine Winsinger, washing and polishing the furniture.

As the Union became cleaner and cleaner, it became harder and harder to be comfortable. Shouts such as "Don't sit on that chair," or "Get your feet off that couch, I just cleaned it," or "Throw your cigaret ashes outside, not on the floor," were screamed from every corner. People wandering in and out just didn't have a chance.

To conclude the days festivities and to give an extra shine to the floor Melvin Davis and Miss Klewer used Miss Mack as a polishing brush swishing her up and down the floor on her back to give it that added shine.

When the work was finished, the entire group posted signs to warn others who might use the room and dire punishment was promised anyone who marred the new-found beauty.

Departments File Examinations

Final and mid-term examinations for 1944-45 have been turned in by several University departments, Mrs. Richard E. Gillham, librarian, said this week. The response from the faculty has been quite satisfactory, although not every department is included in the card filing system for examination, she added.

The Student Council passed a resolution requesting faculty members to file examinations in the Library, according to Robert Wale, president of Council.

WSSF Officer To Speak To Orientation Classes

Huntley Dupre, executive secretary of the World Student Service Fund, will be the orientation speaker Monday at 10. Harry Young, in charge of exhibits for the drive among University students, will preside.

A native of Ohio, Dr. Dupre was graduated from Ohio State University. He served in the A. E. F. during the first world war and did prisoners of war work in France.

As head of the Studensky Domov, an international student union with self-governing membership of 27 nationalities, he lived for four years in Czechoslovakia. Returning to the United States, Dr. Dupre taught at Miami University, Ohio State, Kentucky University and served as a summer lecturer at Western Reserve and West Virginia Universities.

A biographer, author and historian, Dr. Dupre is a member of the American Historical Association, the American Association of University Professors and the Masaryk Institute. His experience with European Student Relief after the last war and his association with the World's Student Christian Federation led to his work with the WSSF.

The goal set for the University is $777.77 or 77 cents for each student, one-third of this money will go for the purchasing of books for prisoners of war, according to Clyde Summers, general chairman of the drive. The remainder will be spent for aid to Chinese, European refugee and relocated Japanese-American students.

Among former students, now German prisoners of war, who have received aid from the WSSF are Paul Artman, William Booth, Dale Diefenthaler, Stanley Dolgin, Russel Freuttschi, Clarence Gerrick, James Horan, John Kirkbride, Fred Lindberg, H. E. Samberg, Jack Schneider, John Seubert, Roger Shinn, George Spaulding, Robert Wedmer, and Jack Wemmer.

A Japanese prisoner of war, Francis Zettner, also has been contacted by WSSF. Elliot Davis, who has returned to the United States, and Jack Yates who escaped from a German camp in 1944, were benefited prior to their release from the Nazis.

Dr. James M. Holmes of Kent State is retiring president. Following the banquet, visitors will be guests of Student Council at Campus Night. An informal luncheon will be held Saturday in the University cafeteria.

Women To Debate

University students participating in women's debate are Rosina Mazziotti and Bette Galliers, affirmative, and Lucille Garner and Gloria Burke, negative. Philip Smullin and William Gibson will take part in men's debate. Participants in the discussion rounds include Miss Galliers and Miss Garner. Betty Lou Bellman will compete in the oratory group, and Miss Muntz will take part in extempore speaking.

Chairman of publicity is Gloria Burke, assisted by Lawrence Muttart.

Application Considered

President Philip C. Nash has received a letter from the Navy Department stating that the University's application for an R. O. T. C. unit on campus is being studied; Miss Lucille Mack, secretary to the President, said this week.

Sentiment Grows Against Memorial Arch

More sentiment is being marshalled daily against the expenditure of money on useless memorials.

Coronet Magazine recently joined the parade printing an article advocating the building of playgrounds. A bill has been introduced in Congress prohibiting the erection of useless memorials. Insensible to the reproach heaped upon it, the University continues in its plan to sink $6,000 in a pile of stones.

Faculty members have told the students in class that they are surprised that so few alumni have responded. Alumni should not be condemned for being ungenerous. It rather should be understood that they are unwilling to take part in a memorial in the selection of which they had no voice.

Typical was the sentiment of one of our alumnus who has a member of his family attending the University.

"I'd be glad to contribute to a memorial that would serve some purpose. I'm not going to throw away $10 on some project that a committee has selected without any outside assistance."

This sentiment was further echoed this week by one in whose honor the memorial will be established. Capt. Frederick J. Haase of the United States Army, whose letter is printed under the cartoon, took time recently to express his opinions.

When a captain in the Army takes time to write to a newspaper, it is because he is writing on a subject about which he has some deep convictions. Captain Haase has an excellent idea in his suggestion to establish a scholarship fund to assist children of alumni. Here is a suggestion that would benefit those veterans who needed it in a manner that would combat the evils against which these men are fighting.

Tune In 1230

The University Radio Guild is going on the air tonight, beginning a regular weekly program. It is hoped that it will continue through the school term.

This is the first time in many years that such a group has been on the air under University sponsorship.

Hoping that both faculty and students will take an interest in the series, the guild members are welcoming comment about the program. They are University representatives on the air and will appreciate suggestions.

Although their first broadcast will be an adaption, the script class here has written original material for their second presentation, concerning the coming San Francisco conference.

Students are invited to tune in WTOL at 7:45 p. m. today and listen to fellow students on the air.

Added Prestige

Another national is coming on campus. It is Phi Alpha Theta, national honorary fraternity.

These national groups add prestige to the University. We are glad to see them installed.

To the new members of the group, we wish you educational and happy times here. With Dr. Andrew J. Townsend, adviser, and the new cabinet of officers, we are sure you will begin and maintain a successful chapter here.

New Memorial Idea

From Students And Faculty

To The Editor:

I have been receiving regularly copies of the Collegian, for which I wish to express my thanks at this time.

In the Feb. 23 issue of the Collegian, there appeared an editorial by Don Mueller entitled "Living Memorial" upon which I feel the urge to comment.

Based on four years military experience, I feel that I can authoritatively state that the average serviceman and woman is conditioned to the point of reducing all things to their lowest common denominator. That is to say, that we in the service have adopted toward most things, a practical attitude and no longer respect false values.

Specifically, with respect to the proposed memorial to former University students in the armed forces, I suggest that probably the majority of those to be so honored would prefer, as Mr. Mueller put it, a "Living Memorial."

I further recommend that a Scholarship Fund be established to provide financial assistance in the years to come to the children of those veterans who are University alumni. This, I think, would serve as a very useful memorial to all veterans of the University.

We have, as a result of our war experiences, become more conscious of the increased need for educational opportunities to all and the existence of the requirement for a progressive and practical educational system.

Many of us in the service managed a college education only by the most extreme sacrifices due to financial handicaps. We are highly anxious that our children shall be assured a better opportunity in the future. Our government has seen fit to make provisions for us under the G. I. Bill of Rights. Our University could well perpetuate the memory of its veterans by establishing permanent financial assistance to the offspring of servicemen and women who were former students.

The fostering of this ideal could be effected through the memorial establishment of such a fund. If such a plan is announced, I shall be very happy to pledge a substantial contribution.

Frederick J. Haase, Captain, MAC, U. S. Army (Ed. Note: This is the most constructive and worthwhile memorial which has been suggested to date.)

To The Editor:

In the three years since I left the University, and the editorship of the Campus Collegian, I have continued to maintain a rather lively interest in many of the activities of the University and the Collegian through as intensive a correspondence possible during six campaigns and four assault landings that have carried me from Tunisia well into Germany as a line soldier and a combat correspondent.

It has recently come to my attention that as a memorial to those who have lost their lives in this war a stone arch is to be erected over the driveway into the University rear parking lot. I have known several of these men; I have also known a lot of other men who have been killed in action; I saw some of these men die. I don't think any of them would appreciate a memorial of this type.

For the University to be unable to conceive of a better memorial than a stone or concrete archway astounds me as much as it disgusts me. To place the arch over a parking lot driveway is merely additional bad taste.

When I was at the University the cry was always for money to equip laboratories, buy books for the Library (even build a new Library) raise, or pay, instructor salaries, create scholarships, erect new buildings. Has all that been accomplished in the past three years?

If you will visit Rome today you will see the arches built by the old emperors. On the morning of June 6 they were protected by sandbags against Allied shelling and bombing while the house of Roman civilizations lay in ruins. The arches still stand, to commemorate triumphs of the Caesars who dragged their victims in chains through the streets; today the arches merely clutter the streets and impede vital military traffic, but this is all beside the point.

May I suggest that any funds raised for memorial purposes be used for some more worthwhile purpose. Soldiers are dying for something worthwhile. Give them a memorial more in keeping with the sacrifice they make. Erect a building that will serve some useful educational purpose. Buy a few thousand books for the Library. Create scholarships enough with war memorials; there are already too many generals on horseback and cannonballs in front of public buildings in America.

Look to the future to commemorate the past.

As I See It

Song Goes Over

By Dolores Mack

Throats were a little choked up and were suspiciously moist last week when new University sweetheart song, "My T" was introduced to the students and faculty. This is truly one of the most beautiful melodies I have ever been fortunate enough to hear.

If this song doesn't die a natural death from lack of interest in the student body, it will do much to create a school spirit that has been low. The song is written with a melody which is lovely and easy to remember—the type of song much like the popular ballads of the day. This fact should make it doubly simple for students to hum, sing and whistle.

Dolores Mack

All students should make a point of learning the words and tune to this song. It should be sung when sorority women and fraternities men congregate, on picnics, roasts, whenever University students get together to have a good time. With a little help this song will become the important song of the school second only to the Alma Mater.

A good way to keep the song in existence is to institute a system of song-fests on days in the Theatre. Students would participate if they were given the chance to participate.

Included in these programs should be popular songs of the day which everyone knows, old songs that are perennial favorites among young people wherever they are, school songs, especially the new one.

Instrumental programs could be arranged to fit into this scheme and there should be enough talent in this University to compose a swing band that could play. The talent went over in fine style and I think the song-get-togethers would make even a greater success with the students because they will be able to take part in them.

By The Way

No More Filth

By Patty Hammontree

The students were ashamed of their dent Union. Remarks from the public at the filth were true but the truth hurt.

So Saturday afternoon a group of us students cleaned the lounge, library and The administration should be ashamed of the condition it was in. We realize help is not plentiful, but we hope the Union never gets in that condition again.

Windows were washed, some for the first time in five years. The curtains, of which Miss Katherine Easley, dean of women is so proud, were rotting at the windows. The students refused to put them up without their being cleaned. They, along with the rugs, should be cleaned at least annually.

We washed and polished every bit of furniture; washed and waxed the floor brushed cushions that can never be so again because of hunks of dust ground in them; polished the corroding ash trays; dusted lamp shades which had pieces of cellophane still hanging; washed bulbs and indirect lighting globes; washed radiators with inches of dirt underneath; washed the mantle to see original color; took off varied types of crumpled paper from the ceiling and chandeliers, probably left for years, and washed everything sight.

As a result we have some pleas:

1. To both faculty and students, please keep the Union clean. Never let it get dirty again. It is cheaper to clean it than let things rot. Use the ash trays as such. Rugs for ash trays. Keep it straightened.

2. To whom it may concern, please do your best to get a new piano. The old one is an eyesore. If this cannot be done immediately, do as soon as possible. Some of the pianos in University Hall are better. Of course, a grand piano is preferred.

3. For immediate consumption, the floor need refinishing badly and walls could use some paint. If you can't get help for painting buy the paints and brushes and the students will be glad to help, I know.

Some faculty members may be smiling at now. This pride is probably what they have wanted for years and have tried to but couldn't. Yes, we are finally taking an interest in keeping the Union clean, because helped clean it.

We had fun doing it. We had a real player, which made things very pleasant. Al Wayland C. Byers, purchasing agent, made feel that things weren't so bad after all when he did a grand purchasing job by buying lunches. We appreciated that and truly, I don't expect it.

But one last reminder, don't ever let the Union get in such terrible condition again.

Library Plans File Of War Activities Here

Library officials are interested in building a complete file of the war activities of the University and its men and women in and out of service, according to Mrs. Richard E. Gillham, librarian.

Student cooperation is needed to do this, Mrs. Gillham said and all students are asked to bring in articles which will help complete the records.

Articles particularly needed are letters or copies from former students now in the armed forces, records of camp activities, pictures, photographs and charts, camp and overseas newspapers, service records, orders of the day, diaries and log books.

Engineering, Science, Management War Training materials, civilian defense information, rationing board activities, factory war activities, souvenirs and trophies of war, Red Cross activities records and all other items which pertain to the University's war effort are needed.

The materials collected will be carefully preserved, Mrs. Gillham said, and will serve as a permanent record of the part the University is playing in this World War.

All items should be taken to the Library and further information may be obtained from any member of the Library staff.

Employment Open To Students

All students desiring employment for the summer are asked to register with the personnel office giving their job preference. Graduates can register for the jobs they desire and the personnel office will notify them for interview dates.

The jobs open are for a laboratory technician for Michigan State Hospital (graduate), Ohio Bell Telephone Co., Goodyear Aircraft Co., Counselling at Summer Camps, B. F. Radio Group To Present First Of Skit Series

Preparing for their debut on WTOL today, members of the radio production class study scripts and test microphones in preparation for their first show. While Gloria Moore and Richard Henderson work the controls, Ruth Lumm and Genevieve Sell try out the script.

The University Radio Guild will present the first in a series of programs over Station WTOL beginning tonight. Miss Dorothy Kellogg's production class will present scripts written in Harry Lamb's class in script writing.

Subjects of wide range will be used throughout the series which will last until the end of the school year. Both original scripts and an adaptation of "A Shipment of Mute Fate," will be given. The second broadcast will be an original script. Since it pertains to the coming west coast conference, it is entitled, "Preface to San Francisco."

The cast includes Bob May, Ray McNeil, Glenn Coy, Gloria Moore, Russell Mills, Marshall Seligman, Dan Radecki, Genevieve Sell, Dorothy Green, Ruth Lumm and Mary Theresa Munzer. Richard Henderson is in charge of music.

The Warren Radio Workshop relinquished part of their time recently on the air to the University Radio Guild. This was the first time they had been on the air as a group. The group presented "The Fountain of Dancing Children." This told the story of the children of Russia and the part they have taken in the war.
