Dear Mom + All, Sept 20, 1945

Thought I would drop you a few lines again today. I am send Jerry a picture of a couple Japs. He can see what they look like now. That knife he has is like all the officers carry. The blade really shines. They never touch them with their fingers. They are handed down from father to son.

I haven't did any thing today but go on guard at the stockade tomorrow.

Have you been able to find any films yet or arnt there any around there. There isnt much to write about today so will close for this time.

So-long for now
Love, Billie.
