

The University of Toledo
Citation Honoring
Lucille B. Emch

Your record of a half century of service in our library is unlikely ever to be surpassed. In a career that has taken you through the academic ranks from student assistant to full professor you have contributed to growth and progress in a journey from Scott Park to University Hall to Gillham Hall and, finally, to a spacious home in the William S. Carlson Library.

Your loyal service as the library's associate director for rare books, special collections and archives leaves a permanent memorial to your dedication to this specialized work. Your interest in manuscripts, printing and calligraphy has taken you overseas to study in a dozen lands, and has given you knowledge shared gladly with your students.

As executive secretary of the Friends of the University Library, you have labored diligently to win both friends and funds for this, the very heart of the University.

In recognition, then, of faithful service to this University and as a tribute from your faculty colleagues, you are commended publicly and named by the Board of Trustees to the rank of
