What is Cross Blending?

an Art
might explain it this way...

They blend and cross-blend these tobacs and they get the special tone they want in other words, Chesterfield flavor.

Let's say you're palating tobacs on the palette. But you know it's clouds until you blend certain tobacs into the special tone you want.

"This is very much what happens in making a good cigarette. And just as each color you use sets on the others to change and catch these, so each Chesterfield blend is made up of certain tobacs. That's why different kinds get a better kind. That's Cross-Blending."
