Opinions from Within

By Thomas Parsons, Jr.

As the time passes and economic conditions of the country are changing, it is interesting to note the views of our own people on subjects relating to these subjects.

Dr. George L. Saffler, professor of economics and finance, has stated: "A new era is being born in the American banking system the beginning of federal regulation of all banks. In addition to tighter control, there will be an extension of branch banking and the regulation of investments."

He believes that branch banking will greatly increase the system used in Canada, namely, the substitution of strong banks with "poor" banks for small banks and "poor" banks for strong banks.

One of the students who attended the meeting has stated: "It is interesting to note the views of our own people on subjects relating to these subjects."

Another student has stated: "The views of our own people on subjects relating to these subjects are very interesting."
