Sergeant Hennessy:

Effective Friday, November 11th, 1927, you will be in complete charge of the Liquor Squad. I want you to pick the men to work with you, men that you can trust to clean this town of liquor violators. You will have no one to fear, your hands are not tied and I want you to enforce the liquor law to the letter. No one shall hamper you and I shall expect you to enforce this and clean this town of all liquor.

I want you to raid every known bootlegging joint and any other place handling liquor. Give me the names of the men that you pick so that we may make the proper transfers in the Department.
