Societies, Doctors Learn Availabilities

Representatives of 22 county medical societies in northwestern Ohio met Monday night in Bowling Green with educators from the Medical College of Ohio to discuss continuing education and other programs available at the college.

Dr. Robert G. Page, dean of the college, said the session gave presidents of the societies, and physicians responsible for continuing-education programs in hospitals and county medical groups, a chance to discuss and understand needs of a community of medical scholars.

Information gathered even-
