President Asa S. Knowles of the University of Toledo has been named by Gov. William C. O'Neill to the 12-member Ohio Commission on Education Beyond the High School.

The group, headed by Dr. John C. Baker, president of Ohio University, is made up of educators and prominent citizens who will make recommendations for the State Legislature after a study of four problems:

1. What new or expanded facilities will be necessary?
2. How can it be made certain that all young people with ability and desire to study will be able to take advantage of educational opportunities?
3. How can Ohio best preserve its educational traditions and at the same time assure equal educational opportunities for all?
4. What changes or new policies are needed to insure high educational standards in the years ahead.
